More About the Grand Excursion

The original Grand Excursion of 1854 was a celebration by the Chicago and Rock Island Railroad Company. It hosted more than 1,200 dignitaries, politicians, journalists, and business leaders, including the 13th United States President Millard Fillmore, on a rail and steamboat journey to celebrate the first continuous railroad connection from the East Coast to the Mississippi River – Chicago to Rock Island. Participants boarded rail cars in Chicago and traveled to Rock Island. From there the group transferred to a fleet of steamboats for the trip up the Mississippi River to Saint Paul, Minn., and on to the Falls of Saint Anthony in Minneapolis. The publicity that followed attracted millions of investment dollars and thousands of new residents to the area.

The events surrounding Grand Excursion 2004 will tie the communities together in a common bond while showing the world the new face of the upper Mississippi River – a reclaimed treasure for tourism, housing, and recreation. Over 50 communities and dozens of organizations in the 400-mile upper Mississippi River region will be holding hundreds of events. The largest steamboat flotilla in more than a century will be complemented with trains powered by authentic steam locomotives traveling overland.

On June 25, 2004, a vintage train will leave Chicago and travel to Rock Island. On June 26 seven steamboats, including the Mississippi Queen and Delta Queen, will assemble for the Grand Flotilla. These steamboats will travel up the Mississippi in Grand style, visiting historic communities in four states along the way. It promises to be a Grand Event.
